The torch that fired all this combustible material in the market was the enormous buying of Norfolk & Western common in his accustomed "rushing" manner by a noted Western speculator who returned from Europe yesterday. The ostensible basis for this action was what has long been the practical certainty that the annual dividends on the tainty that the annual dividends on the stock would be raised from 2 per cent to 3 per cent at the next meeting of the directors at which a dividend can be de-

The operator in question supplemented his action by an interview in which he declared himself profoundly bullish on the entire stock market, and as it is well known that the resources of this speculator and those of his followers, which have at no time been small, have recently bean increased by the proceeds paid into their hands by the successful coup in Louisville and Nashville, the speculative element in the street was trongly inclined to follow the market path thus indicated, just as they did in the summer.

THE COTTON MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.-The general trend of cotton prices today was down ward, owing to generally favorable weather, declining spot markets and local and Southern selling, together with a lack of support. There were momentary small rallies on covering of shorts, and receipts were smaller and the Hous-ton and New Orleans estimates were rather moderate, while there was killing frost at Asheville and light frost at Atlanta, Ga., and Lake, Miss. The trouble was that the weather in the main was good, the speculation dull, and there was an absence of really stimu-lating factors of any kind.

The market closed steady, with quo-tations 1 to 4 lower as compared with
